PONDERVM, MENSVRARVM, ET MONETARVM VETERVM

reductio ad ea, quæ sunt Anglis jam in vsu.

N veterum ponderibus, mensuris, & monetis reducendis ad ea, quibus Angli nunc vtuntur, sententiam Georgij Agricola, potissimum sequar, non quod Portij, Budæi, & Alciati in eo genere scripta, quæ multam Agricola inuenerunt, contemniam: nec quod Fuchij, Glareani, & aliorum aliquot, qui postea scripserunt, industriam leuiorem esse putem: sed eum mihi sua gravissimis testimonijs, & præcipue Galeni observationibus probaverit, illum, ubi dissentiunt, ceteris antepono. Quod quidem eo profiteri libentius, quia Syllivius, quæ de ponderibus & mensuris à Galeo collegerat, illius lectore auctiora, melioraque fecit, & relicto Budæo clarissimo populari suo, profusus in Agricola sententiam concessit. Sed antequam ad vetera declaranda venio, ut res intelligatur, de Anglicanis quædam præmittenda sunt.

Pondera quibus nostrates vtuntur, duplicia sunt. Alijs enim vulgò mercatores: alijs aurifabri & nummulavij vtuntur. Mercatorum pondus, quod nomine Gallico over du pois vocitant, habet in libra vncias suas sedecim: & pro singulis centenarijs, centum & duodecim numerant. Aurifabrorum libra, quam Troinam appellant, vncias suas habet duodecim, & earum singula ad mercatorum vncias rationem habent sesquiduodecimam, ita nimirum, ut vndecim Troiana duodecim mercatorum ad vnguem, quod exploravi iustissima trutinâ, exæquent. Hæc autem ponderibus aurifabrorum, veterum pondera declarabo. A Troy ounce weigheth five iust angls, or five twelve penny pieces. It hath two halfe ounces, foure quarters, eight halfe quarters, sixteen farthing gold weights, twenty penny weights, 24. charats: euery penny weight hath 24. grains of Goldsmiths asshe, and euery charat 20. one euery penny weight hath by statute 32. grains of wheat, which I use not, but only those of asshe.

Inde fit aspondium, a pound weight. Item Duapondo, Trepondo, 2. pound 3. pound. Dupondius, of 2. pound weight. Scribonius Largus, Pondo duo, & Pondo tria dicit quoru primum Quintiliano non probatur: Centum pondum, Centena pondo, & Centum pondo. An hundred pound weight. Pondo si solum ponatur, idem quod libra significat: si alteri vocabulo ponderis iungatur idem valer quod apud Græcos εἰς δύο vel ἰσάλη. I ponderes & notatur P. ut apud Celsum P.P. * id est, Pondo vnus denarius: & apud Scribonium * p. i. denarius pondo vnus. i. denarius pondere vnus. In weight one denarius. P. etiam signatur pondo pro librâ. Ab asshe sunt Treffis Oasshis, & alia quædam, quæ in nummorum supputatione tantum vtitata sunt nomina, quod sciam, non pōderibus, & suo loco dicentur. As non solum librâ, sed rebus alijs quoque solidis & varijs integris, quæ apte in duodecim partes dividi possunt, accommodatur: ut sextario, pedi, iugero, hereditati. Partes, cum dividitur, habet eisdem semper appellatas nominibus, quæ nunc in libra dicentur. Libræ nota sic l' vulgò sic lib. Dupondii sic l' l'.

DE MENSURIS. De Mensuris Anglorum quedam.

Quamvis Rex Henricus septimus, vt servaretur (quemadmodum legibus multis præcipitur) vna & eadem apud Anglos ubique mensura, rata capacitate area vascula mensurarum velut exemplaria futura ad oppida celebriora quædam transmissit: locis tamen non ita multum distantibus permagna reperitur mensurarum diversitas. Nos vt in tanta discrepantia certum aliquod sequeremur, Regias mensuras Burlam transmissas, expendimus, & eisdem capacitates veterum declarabimus. Illud verò sciendum est, in regia mensura, quæ vocatur a pinte, infra marginem aliquantum teres & exiguum foramen spectari, quo mensuram vini & olei determinari quidam dicunt, vt vasculo pleno, cervisia & Biera: Leges nostræ, quantum percentando intelligere potui, huius discriminis nusquā meminerunt, sed cum aliis locis permulti, tum anno primò Richard 3. c. 13. diserte prohibere videantur. 195. In re pecuniaria numeranda Romani quoq; numeros suis monetis apponunt, ut decem denarii a noble sterling, sed multo frequentius per sestertios numerant, quos aliquando solos ponunt, aliquando nummos appellant, & nonnunquam coniunctim sestertios nummos.

Decem sestertii, decem nummi decem sestertiis, siue quatuordecim sterling.

Centum sestertii 16. shillings, 8. pence. Mille sestertii, 8. pound and a noble sterling.

Hoc sestertium Budæus putat mille valere sestertios, id pernegat Agricola, cuius opinio cur mihi probabilior videatur, disceptatione de sestertio patefaciam. Supra mille cum numerant, sæpe millia subaudiunt non expriment.

Decem sestertium seu decem millia sestertium 83. pound, one noble sterling. Aliquando millia & sestertium vna tacent.

Centena, centena sestertium, centena millia sestertium, & centum millia sestertium, 833. pounds and a noble.

Pro mille, millia sestertium, quod reperitur apud Plin. sæpius dictum, decies centena millia sestertium, & semper ascendendo per adverbia loquuntur, centena millia frequentissime tacent, nonnunquam sestertium quoque.

Decies decies sestertii, decies centena millia sestertium, 8336. pounds and a noble sterling. By the summe here specified, all other may easily be counted: first multiplying, and then dividing pence by 12. for shillings, shillings by 20. and nobles by 30. for pounds.

196. Est etiam apud Romanos non dissimilis æris numeratio, ut ex Livio potest intelligi, lib. 24.

Decem millia æris, 33. pounds and a noble sterling. Decies æris & forte decies centena millia æris, 3333. pound and a noble sterling.

Et hæc de ponderibus, mensuris & monetis hæcenus, in quibus nihil proficere esse meum, præter explanationem Anglicanam & tantillum quod hisce notis & duabus includitur. Apud Agricola pleræq; omnia hic à me nudis verbis tradita gravissimis maximorum authorum testimoniis probantur, quamquam in Hebræicis mihi nondum viquequaque satisfactum esse cōfitear. Posteaquam pōderum & mensurarum iustas

Inter se habitudines cōclusisset, bifariam ad certum & determinatum in veris que pervenit: denarios Romanos medicos diligenter appendit, quo experimento eorum aliorumque ponderum gravitatem cognovit. Tum è pede Romano cubum fabricavit, olei limpidissimi tantum continere pōdere è denariis cōstituto expertus est, quantum antiquo Romano certissimis observationibus è Galeno collegerat. Itaque è mensuris pondera, & è ponderibus mensuras ad vnguem experimento concludens, sententiam, quam supra retulimus fideius exposuit. Nos autem aureum seu ducatum Hungaricum, quem ille vndecim duo decimas denarii Romani pēdere affirmat, fundamentum supputationum fecimus, & ad molestas nec admodum viles memororum fractiones evitandas, magnorum Authorum in re simili, exemplo, quinq; & quinquaginta granis Troianis, quamvis parte ferè quinquagesima sit gravior, æstimavimus. Mensuras autem, cubum è quadrante pedis Romani cum Anglicanis comparando, constitimus, & in oleo appendendo eandem, quam Agricola ponderum ferè ad vnguem consensione analogia quadam invenimus. Quæ cum ita sunt, veterum Agricola me autè Agricola sententiam assecutum esse cōfido.

DE SESTERTIO.

SI autoritate Budæi, ut hominis vndique doctissimi & optime de literis meriti vehementer moveor, de Sestertio, tamen eius sententiam, Agricola summi viri relictâ, probare non possum. Quod sestertium mille non valeat sestertios, multis argumentis colligitur. Primò Volusius, Plinius, & Varro, qui ne Semellas, Terentios, vel quadrantes prætermissem, de rei nummarie tam grandi summa, si in vlu fuisset, non videntur silece voluisse. Præterea, Martialis lib. 2. Epig. 30. Viginti sestertia ut non grave munus commemorat, quod de libris argenti quinquaginta aut quinquaginta novem & ferè dimidio commodè intelligi non potest. Ad hæc sestertium non ponitur pro mille sestertiis, ea ratione, qua sestertius pro æris duabus libris, & semisse, ut Budæus putat. Nam quod libram Romanam dicit centum constare denariis, nullis authoribus dicit. Et Plinius lib. 33. cap. 9. disertè quatuor & octoginta è libris signari asserit. Ex quo colligitur mille sestertios, tres libras minus duobus denariis pendere, & fieri non posse, ut sestertium Budæanum à duabus libris argenti & semisse dicatur, quemadmodum sestertius à duobus assibus & semisse, tanquam semistertius dictus est. Possunt etiam, quæ in contrarium afferuntur, nullo negotio delui, Budæus, Lambinus, & quidam familiaris meus sestertia pro mille sestertiis apud autores poni contendunt, ut Cic. Epist. ad Rufum, cum primò sestertium centum millia posuisset, eandem summam postea centum sestertia vocat. In eam sententiam multa loca afferri posse dicunt, & verè dicunt, idque palam Agricola confitetur. & errore librariorum sestertia pro sestertiis scriptum esse dicit. Sed familiaris ille meus contra fidem omnium exemplarium verbum mutare, temerarium & nullo modo ferendum esse putat. Ego quidem exemplaribus consentientibus multum tribuo, & tamen si vspiciam noster albus, & vir nigra constantissime legeretur, non dubitare illic alba, hic niger reponere. Apud Cic. lib. 3. in Verrem in testimonio A Enclium multi libri legunt. L. Medinna, sed cum illa Medinna statim CCC millibus modum æstimetur, non medinna, quantumvis exemplaria consenserint, sed medinnam legendum esse constat. Modius enim 300000. medinnam 50000. communiter æstimantur. Apud Varro nem cum legitur de re rustica lib. 3. cap. 2. Cato è piscinis Luculli quadraginta millibus sestertiis vendidit, & cap. 17. propter piscinum multitudinem quadragies sestertio villam vanisse, dubitamus pro sestertio & sestertiis, Sestertium substitueret Budæus qui decies vices, &c. sestertio quondam legebat, id quod in eo Agricola reprehendit in breviario de asse, non dubitat decies vices, &c. sestertium dicere. Accedamus propius. Apud eundem Varro nem constantè legitur lib. 3. cap. 6. Centenarius grex facile quadragena millia sestertia reddat, & c. 17. Hirtius circum piscinas suas ex ædificiis suis duodena millia sestertia capiebat: an propter exemplarium conspirationem Sestertia retinebimus? Linacer vir & doctrina & iudicio singulari de emend. struè. lib. 3. longe aliter sentit. Sicubi inquit in simili casu (millia) continenter cum alio appellativo legeretur, apud idoneum præsertim auctorem, suspensus plane habendus est locus. Et in fratribus cum pro duo millia sestertium, Talentum, Modium. I I M H S. vel Talent vel Sest. vel Mod. scriptum invenirent, duo millia sestertia vel Talenta, vel Modios posuerunt. Mea tamen haud interese, vtrum sestertia in sestertium ratione & optimorum auctorum vlu suffragante mutetur an retineatur. Si mutatur, nihil temerarium Agricola committit, qui in exemplaribus consentientibus corruptionem insinuat: si retinetur, Varro nis loci sestertios, & sestertia paria fuisse convincunt. Addo his Plinium, apud quem 4. diversis impressis exemplaribus, lib. 33. cap. 3. & eodem modo apud Perottum hæc leguntur, Placuit denarius pro decem libris, quinarius pro quinque, sestertium pro dipondio & semisse: ubi nisi sestertius pro sestertium contra consensum exemplarium ponimus; Sestertium apud Plinium, idem est quod apud Varro nem sestertius, cui lib. 4. de ling. Lat. Dipondium & semis antiquum sestertius est. Sed negatur quadringenta sestertium apud Auctores pro Quadringenta millia sestertium poni. Frequentissime ponitur, quod in rebus aliis minus calumnii obnoxii offendam, Cic in Verrem lib. 3. Hæc sunt ad tritici medimnum X Cid est, Tritici modium D. LX. millia L. id est, Medimnum nonaginta millia, Plin. lib. 8. cap. 43. Asinum CCCC. nummum emptum ex Axio auctor est Varro, id est Quadringentis nummum pro quadringentis millibus nummum. Quin millia, & sestertium simul omituntur aliquando, ut Tranquillus in Vespas. Primus Rhetoribus annua centena constituit: & Iuvenal. Sat. 1. Sed quinque Tabernæ quadringenta parant. Et sic ex librariis erratis nihil firmum contra Agricola sententiam affertur. Loca deinde proferuntur è poetis, in quibus sestertia maius quiddam quam sestertius significare videntur. Amicus è Martial. lib. 2. Epig. 63. & lib. 10. Epig. 75. producit. Lambinus habet ex eodem lib. 6. Epig. 30. Catullum ad Furium & Silonem Horat. 7. Epist. lib. 1. & 2. lib. 2. Budæus è Iuven Sat. 4. Quibus, quam possum brevissime, respondebo. 1. Si Melichi centum sestertia ducentas & quinquaginta argenti libras pondere valebant, fuisset dives, non ut è Martiale colligitur, pauper. Lada etiam si empta fuit, iis empta non fuit. Toxilus in Plaut. Per. 600. minis virginem liberat. Calliodorus mille ducentis apud Martial. lib. 10. Epig. 31. Servum vendit: itaque quanto à iusto precio centum sestertii deficiunt, tanto centena millia exuperant. 2. Bis quina sestertia dictum minus esse, quam viginti, maius quam duo millia, quod de sui precio sensim Gallia detrahebat: At à viginti ad decem millia primò, inde ad duo millia recidisse pernego. Maximum precii & minimum primis, 4. versibus exponi dicam; sequētib; immutationē sensim factū, 195. quia decem sestertia, seu sestertii idem valent, quod centum quadrantes, qui pro vilissimo precio postea ponuntur: Martialis præterea, qui si verè obiceretur eam postea mille sestertiis æstimabat, brevi temporis curriculo, detractio pretii dimidio, carius quā prius videri non debuit. 3. Facile crediderim Martiale hominem impurissimum pauperissimum quoq; fuisse, & sestertios sex à Pato munio sumpsisse, cum Quernus Archipoeta, ut est apud Iovium, ingenio fortasse par, moribus honestior, in hospitali domo post summam Leonis decimæ familiaritatis miseriam perierit. Furum cui nec servus, nec arca, nec cimex fuit, in summa summa mendicitate centum optasse sestertios, satis est probabile. 5. Et 10 similiter à Silone Catullum lusu & loco repetiisse. Quæ ex Horatio adducuntur, videntur difficiliora 6 Philippus, cum septē donat sestertia, mutua septē promittit maius aiunt, quam septem sestertia Menæ dedisse: at id minus fuit non indignum quod daretur Vilia vendenti tuncrate scruta popello. Septem millia, quæ sunt annui vestigalis Ciceroniani pars ferè decima, vt è Paradoxis liquet, maius fuit, quam vt daret Philippus, Sibi dum requiem, dum risus undique queris. At promittit septem quibus meretur agellum, non septem sestertios, sed millia sestertium, quod subintelligi posse ex Tranquillo & Iuvenale supra probavimus. 7. Luculli milles, qui ob rem strenuè gestam, donis ornatur honestis, Accipit & bis dena super sestertia nummum, procul omni dubio viginti millia sestertium accepit. Sed in tam inusitata loquendi ratione, si erratum in simulem librarii, non est magnopere reprehendendum: Non magis dicitur Latine sestertia nummum, quam sestertii nummum, sed tantum, sestertium nummum. E Cicerone productus à Lambino locus nihili est. Scribitur enim H S. Quod non magis sestertia, quam sestertium, legi potest. Qui mihi dixit Ciceronem inter H S. & nummos numeralia non interponere, aberrat. Sic enim apud eundem scribitur in Ver. lib. 3. Dedi stipendio, frumento, legatis, proquestoribus, cohorti præterea H S. mille sexcenta tri-ginta quinque millia quadringentos sedecim nummos. Sed missa in simulatione librariorum, habeo aliud quod respondeam non absurdè, viz. Horatium vsu hypallage poetica & sestertia tanquam adiectivum fecit, cum millia subaudiendum congruere, cum vsitate cum nummum convenire oportebat: vt apud Virgilium. Ibant obscuro sola sub nocte. At dicitur, Sestertius non est adiectivum: legimus, inquam, sestertius pes, sestertius nummus, sestertius nummis, sestertium nummum. 8. E Iuvenale Budai locus, Mullum sex millibus emit, Equantem sane paribus sestertia libris. Agricola sic devitat: non vult, vt Budæus, tot sestertia precium fuisse, quot pendebat libras, sed tot libras pependisse, quot sestertiis quibus emptus fuit. 9. Libras Budæus octodecim, ferè Agricola putat, & quamvis nulli fuerint 4. librarum, vt è Martiale liquet, lib. 10. Epig. 31. Mullus tibi quatuor emptus librarum, conæ Pompa caputque fuit. Absurdi tamen nihil Agricola sequitur, cum è Plin. lib. 9. cap. 18. constet nullum 80. librarum in mari rubro captum: & eius opinionem adiuvat etiam vsus frequens, vt perhibent qui de magnis maiora loquuntur. Atque hæc paulò vberius de Sestertio disserui, paulò tamen strictius, & obscurius quam vellem: vt constaret, quamvis Agricola suam sententiam nudis propè verbis exposuit, multo quàm contrariam probabilius argumentis posse defendi.

FINIS.

THE PRINTER TO ALL YOUNG LEARNERS OF THE LATINE TONGUE.

W^hat I long since intended, I haue now at length, with no small charge accomplished. My endeaour hath bene hitherto, to gather into my store-house all the Latin words with their true English significations, which could bee collected out of ancient authors, and to marshall them in their due rankes, after the most compendious manner that might bee, for the benefit of all Students in generall. Which, as very profitable, hath bene accepted and approoued to my great content. Now haue I likewise, so farre forth as I thought it necessary and behoofefull for your good, who are young learners of the Latin tongue, brought into like order and method, all our English words, and haue caused them to march before the Latin, that they may bee knowne likewise to you in the same language, whensoever you shall seeke for their acquaintance. This though it be not in that copious and ample manner performed, as by others heretofore hath bene, who intending their owne priuate ends, haue heaped vp whatsoeuer they could rake together out of other mens labours, yet my trust is, that I haue herein effected so much, as shall be for your vse, who are young grammarians. For to what end are obsolete words to be stuffed into this worke, when better are as readie to bee had, vnlesse it be to make vp a number of some thousands, that the volume may seeme the greater, though not the worthier? By this meanes young beginners many times, for want of iudgement, rather make choice of a barbarous word for their purpose, then of a better. As for Students well grounded in the Latin tongue, it is necessarie, I confesse, for them to haue all the Latin words, that haue bene at any time by Latin writers vsed (whether pure or other) put into a Latin Dictionarie: because such Students may by that meanes the sooner come to the knowledge of that they desire, and no inconvenience arise vnto them thereby. But who seeth not, for that cause aboue mentioned, how dangerous it is, and therefore vnnesse, for young Schollers, that barbarous barous words should once appeare in this English Vocabularie? I will not affirme these my Labours to be cleare from all such imputation, because it is a hard matter, at the first to set forth any thing so perfit in all points, which in this curious and carping Age may possibly passe, without some exception thereunto. But my hope is, and I thinke I may boldly say, that for your vse, to whom especially I dedicate this Worke, it shall appeare to the World by tryall, the same to be the most conuenient in this kinde, that hitherto hath passed the Presse. Abijt iactantia verbis. Whatsoeuer it be, I desire your fauourable acceptance thereof for this time, and your patience till hereafter, when I shall, God willing, review, polish, and licke over the same againe.
